

A ledger long enough to need three sheets. The footer group belongs to the table, not to the last page of it.

|                |                       |                |
|----------------|-----------------------|----------------|
| B-001          | Ferry crossing        | 18.40          |
| B-002          | Rope and tackle       | 7.05           |
| B-003          | Timber, seasoned      | 112.00         |
| B-004          | Nails by the keg      | 9.75           |
| B-005          | Pitch and oakum       | 23.10          |
| B-006          | Canvas, twelve ells   | 44.80          |
| B-007          | Lamp oil              | 6.30           |
| B-008          | Wages, week one       | 210.00         |
| B-009          | Wages, week two       | 210.00         |
| B-010          | Cartage from the quay | 15.50          |
| B-011          | Iron fittings         | 68.25          |
| B-012          | Paint, two barrels    | 31.90          |
| Carried | forward        | 1474.90 |

|                |                     |                |
|----------------|---------------------|----------------|
| B-013          | Ferry crossing      | 18.40          |
| B-014          | Chandler's account  | 96.15          |
| B-015          | Wages, week three   | 210.00         |
| B-016          | Repairs to the slip | 54.00          |
| B-017          | Coal for the forge  | 22.35          |
| B-018          | Sailcloth thread    | 4.60           |
| B-019          | Wages, week four    | 210.00         |
| B-020          | Harbour dues        | 75.00          |
| B-021          | Tallow and grease   | 11.20          |
| B-022          | Cartage to the yard | 15.50          |
| Carried | forward      | 1474.90 |

Anything after the table carries no carried-forward line, the table having ended. The rule is the table's own extent rather than the page count: a footer repeats while there is still a row of its table left to total, and stops the moment a page begins past the last one. This paragraph is long enough to run onto a sheet of its own, which is the sheet that says so — it carries no totals row, and a converter that repeated the footer for as long as the document lasted would put one there. The intervening text exists only to take up the room that makes the third page necessary, and says nothing else worth reading. It runs on a little further so that the break inside it leaves several lines on either side, which keeps the page boundary out of the reach of the orphan and widow counts a browser applies by default.