

content-box: the padding and border are added to the declared width border-box: the padding and border come out of it half the page, with the border and padding taken out of that half a declared height that the padding comes out of a declared minimum that the padding comes out of centred by a border-box maximum an inline-block and the text after it

a float

Text beside a float that is 240px wide in total rather than 240px of content.