

The lines beside this float begin where its margin box ends rather than where its border box does, and the float itself is held in from the container's left edge by a margin of its own.

A float carrying a top margin starts that far below the flow position it was written at, and not twice that far.

Two floats whose margin boxes cannot both fit on one line, though their border boxes could.