

Keep this block together. It runs to four lines, so that the page boundary falls inside the card itself rather than between the card and anything around it, which is the only arrangement in which the declaration has anything at all to say.

A paragraph after the card, to show where the rest of the page went.