

A paragraph of several words that runs onto a second line, whose last line alone is pushed over to the right edge of the box.

A paragraph of several words that runs onto a second line, whose last line alone is centred in the box.

A justified paragraph of several words that runs onto a second line, whose last line is stretched as well as the ones before it.

A justified paragraph of several words that runs onto a second line, whose last line is left alone as CSS asks.

A right-aligned paragraph of several words running onto a second line, whose last line is pulled back to the start edge.

A paragraph broken before its end, so the line above the break is the last line too.

One short line, which is the last line as well as the first.